

1.7. The particle position is below zero on the y -axis, so its position is negative. The particle is moving down, so its velocity is negative. The particle's speed is increasing as it moves in the negative direction, so its acceleration is negative.